Insuring Your Summer Toys

Now that the summer months are finally upon us, people all over the country are lining up at docks to launch their WaveRunners, Jet Skis, and Sea-Doos. You have worked hard to be able to purchase your personal watercraft, so you must realize how important it is to purchase an insurance policy that will protect you financially. Here are just a few of the risks you take each time you take your watercraft out for a ride:

- Damage due to crashing into another rider
- Damage to another rider's craft or dock
- Damage done in transport due to an automobile accident
- Negligence resulting in the injury or death of another person

Personal watercraft insurance will help protect you from situations like these. Typically, these insurance policies will continue to protect you and your watercraft, even if you have loaned it to another person. But wait! Pay close attention to every detail of your policy. There may be exclusions that will get in the way of the coverage you need. Here are a few examples:

- Personal Watercrafts that have been adjusted to boost speed or performance
- Using a personal watercraft after dark
- Using a personal watercraft without a valid driver's license

Many individuals assume that their personal watercraft is covered under their homeowner's insurance. This is rarely the case, and when it is, often doesn't provide adequate coverage. When searching for the policy that is suitable for your lifestyle, don't forget to scour for possible discounts. You will likely qualify for multiple deductions that will save you a great deal of money.

Our team offers quality commercial and personal insurance policies that are sure to meet all of your insurance needs.

Information About Car Care

Car Care ...Are you planning to hit the road for summer road trip? Read this first...AAA roadside service estimates that it helps more than 9 million stranded motorists during the summer.

The average age of passenger vehicles in the U.S. is just over 10 years old. If, like most people, you're not driving a brand new car.

Follow a few easy steps to spruce up your vehicle to help avoid costly repairs. So take your car to a dealership to get checked out—or to a local independent mechanic you trust. Use this spring maintenance checklist to make sure your car is reliable and running efficiently.

Check the battery: You can't get where you are going if the car won't start. Signs of a weak battery: dimming headlights or interior lights; power windows that take longer than usual to go up and down.

Check the brakes: Nothing is more crucial to your safety than your brakes, so get them checked. Trouble signs: pulling to one side when you hit the breaks, squeaking or grinding noises and a brake pedal that feels too soft.

Inspect the tires: Worn-down tires make it hard to stop, even if your brakes are in good order. Try the coin test on your tires: insert a quarter into several grooves across each tire. If part of Washington's head is always covered, you still have 4/32 inch of tread left and can probably drive safely. If you have less tread, it's time to think about replacements. (A definite danger signal comes when you slip a penny into a groove and the tread does not reach Lincoln's head. Even if your tires treads are OK, make sure you keep them inflated to the pressure listed on the placard visible when the driver's door is open. You can boost your gas mileage by 3% or more and make the car safer as well. To get an accurate reading, check the pressure of tires when they are cold, not when you have been driving.

Check the belts and hoses: A broken belt or hose can cause problems ranging from the loss of power steering to an overheated engine, but these parts are easily overlooked. Look for cracks and peeling on the belts, softening on the hoses—or ask your mechanic.

Test the air conditioning: Turn on the cooler full blast and make sure it reaches that max chill in short order. If you suspect problems, get a mechanic to check it out.
